CHORUS. Yes, I would the war were over. Would the needed work were done; With my country still united, And the many stars in one.

Cold upon the field of battle Husbands, sons and brothers lie; Friends are waiting, wives and mother, Looking for them bye and bye. Far away from home for ever Many a noble one lies slain-Look not for thy child, fond mother !

While I would the war were ended, And the cruel struggle o'er, Still, our flag must be defended, And our country as before; Peace, indeed, is Heaven's blessing, Though its joys are easy lost, But we'll battle for our nation

Whatsoc'er it yet may cost.

Thou shalt see him not again.

Characteristic .- R. G. Harper, editor of the Republican paper at Geltysburg, was Penn'a or New York. Mr. Hummer has had taken prisoner. Col. A. K. M'Clure, the Republican editor at Chambersburg, was last year honored by the Rebele' visiting at his house in large numbers. He did not desire to renew their acquaintance, so be loft on their last approach. But Gen. Jenkins took tea at his house, next day :

After being seated, he said, "Mrs. M'-Clure, your husband left here last night." "Yes." "He went out by the way of Rutherford's lane." "Yes." "He was on foot." "Yes—but," said Mrs. Mclure, "how is it, General, you know all these particulars?" "Oh," said Jenkins, with the most biting scorn and irony, "I have it all from our Constitutional friends."

Thus we have traitors - as we had Tories in the Revolution-betraying us at every step, and exposing loyal neighbors.

Gen. Couch desires the 40,000 militia to rendezvous as follows:
At Huntingdon 3,000 men At Harrisburg 17,000

At Reading 20,000 Of these 40,000 men, he wants 2,000 mounted riflemen, and 20 full companies of sharp-shooters.

least twice. Hooker is now relieved, and Grocery and Provision business at Gen.Geo G. MEAD, the pride of the Penn. Reserves, takes his place. He took the command of Hooker when the latter received his serious wound, near Richmond. The Army is perfectly satisfied with the new commander, altho' much attached to Gen. Hooker, who confides fully in Mead, as do also his brother officers.
